Dear Consumers, Family Members, and Caregivers,

RE: Oxygen availability

Given the recent surge in infection rates of COVID-19, the need for oxygen has also increased in California. In some areas, the increased amount of oxygen used to treat COVID-19 infections has resulted in less oxygen available for the treatment of chronic medical conditions. If you or a family member rely on oxygen therapy for a chronic medical condition, we recommend you contact your doctor or the medical supply company that provides your oxygen to make sure you have enough supplies available. Please know that NLACRC is carefully tracking this situation and will share any information or resources should additional information become available for our community.
